

Welcome to the Jungles of Belize!

Want to go on an EdVenture?

Several years ago, we had the chance to visit the jungles of Belize and experience the wonders of the wildlife in this pristine country.

We want to share that with you, but more importantly, inspire your imagination

We have already explored the wildlife of our backyards, so now let's go see what we can find in the rainforests!

On one of our trips, we had the chance to see jaguar tracks along the river outside of our resort.

As biologists, this was an exciting moment, and we decided to build a research program to explore the diversity of this region.

We set up the same cameras as we did in North Carolina, these were deep inside the Maya Mountain range of Belize, just south of the capitol of Belmopan. We waited 30 days before we retrieved the photos.

So... what did we see????
